Route Development Worksheet

A. Describe your skill set.

I'm great at wood work, accountant, or highly organized, etc.

B. Define “gifting” in your own words.

Put a title on your “gifting” and then evaluate where you seem most effective when ministering to people. Are they the same?

C. Tell your story of ministry. When did it start for you and why did you declare your calling?

What has God done in you and through you prior to this moment? How have you been previously involved in church ministry.

D. What will it take for you to enter the calling you sense ahead of you? What are first steps? What are some obstacles preventing your progress?

Lay out where you want to go and then acknowledge the boundaries.

E. Imagine your priorities in your role: what activity do you hope consumes most of your time?

Imagine you were about to start a work day, what do you hope you are most concerned about doing?

F. Consider your duties and where those duties are best accomplished: where are you stationed to complete those duties?

Imagine a work day, are you driving to a church office, down a dirt road in Africa to a tribal chapel, or going to a troubled business meeting some Sunday night?
